Quadra Recreation Society May Day, Saturday May 29, 2010

"Out of this World" is the theme of May Day 2010. Join your friends and neighbours in a big community picnic at Rebecca Spit, Saturday May 29, 2010.

Celebrate the coming of Spring and Summer with colour, costumes, floats, music - the more zany and bizarre the better! Let your imaginations soar and unveil the worlds that hide beyond our vision. With this theme, the sky is the limit. What is beyond our ordinary reality? Creatures that walk upright and speak? Fairies? Dragons? Worlds of ice and fire? Sea Serpents? Aliens? What is Alice doing in Wonderland? What music is out of this world? What stories and myths come to mind?

Q Cove Village Plan Update

It has been several weeks since the last progress report on the Cove Village Plan. During that time the consultants have been drawing and writing initial drafts and getting feedback from the Steering Committee. The work has followed from the principles set out in February, and from the design charrette (workshop), both of which have been covered in earlier DI articles and public meetings.

Who is the Cove Plan for?

Using 2006 census data, the average age on Quadra Island is over 50 years and that more than 20% are over 60. There may be 200 senior's households that are candidates for different housing in the immediate term, and many wish to stay on Quadra. Adding young families and individuals who are poorly housed and have modest incomes would increase that number substantially. This matches well with the results of the 2007 Quadra Housing Survey. Most housing on Quadra now is semi-rural, on acreage. It is expensive to purchase and labour intensive to keep. More housing options that are not available now, and that meet the needs of seniors and young people are essential to the future of Ouadra. This is an existing need, and it is the focus of the plan.

From the 2008 Official Community Plan

"The community would like to create strong, walkable community centers in Quathiaski Cove... Forms of development should incorporate low, small scale, "residential style" building designs and the provision of internal pedestrian and cycle circulation patterns designed to tie into existing and/or future road and trail systems".

From a 2007 vision statement by an ad-hoc working group on Seniors Housing:

'housing and care options for senior or disabled people and housing options for younger people ... in a multi generational setting in The Cove village core area'...

What about landowners?

Right now landowners have very few options in the Cove. The zoning is either 1 acre residential or commercial. Neither allow for the range of options that are needed to meet the existing demand for different housing. The Cove Plan is a framework for the future, providing a coherent way for change to occur, ensuring that goals are met and that the pieces fit together. In the Plan are proposed land use designations and rezoning options that come with obligations to provide for the public interests: trails and greenways, public greens and gathering places, a waterfront walk, etc. as well as more varied and affordable housing options. It's all about the quality of the environment.

Proposed land use designations.

The proposed plan shows new land use designations radiating outward from the existing two village commercial cores (see attached diagram). QCM: The central cores, now commercial, would allow commercial and mixed use zonings such as apartments above shops as well as attached housing (townhouses) and livework studios. It would also allow community service and recreation uses. QCR: The next layer, within about 150 M (500 ft) of these centres, would be residential uses such as garden cottages. townhouses and live-work studios. QPR: The next layer, more than 150m from the commercial core would allow more widely spaced housing such as 15 M (50ft) wide single family lots, as well as the infill of the existing 1Ac lots with cottages. QWM is a special character designation for the waterfront belonging to Weston Foods. It is meant for public water access and low density commercial (shops and cafes etc.) with possible apartments above.

The outer circle would remain unchanged- i.e 1 Acre and larger residential lots. All residential units are expected to have individual entrances- i.e. no apartment buildings.

What about the number of dwellings?

What we are proposing is that core areas might have up to about 6 dwellings per acre while peripheral areas up to about 4 dwellings per acre maximum. Of course this is both a very long term possibility, and also limited by the geography, parks, trails, gardens, greenways and wetland contributions etc. So the actual density would usually be lower. As a comparison, the Seniors Housing underway in the Cove will have 6 or 7 units on one acre.

What about form and character?

We have developed an outline guide for the character of buildings for various areas. It recommends things like sloped and gable roofs, exterior wood trims and details, gardens & greens adjacent to residences, covered walkways and shop windows for commercial, etc. This part is still being drafted, but is seen as an important way to guide overall village character.

What about seniors with care needs?

The steering committee identifies a strong need for supported living facilities in The Cove. So the plan includes proposed locations for this. This facility will have different criteria, e.g. it can have a common entrance like an apartment building.

The future process.

The first draft of the plan and the drawings that go with it are under the scrutiny of the steering committee and are being edited now. The drawings are "scenarios" of how the Cove might change over time once new land use designations are refined and approved. The full draft will be presented at an evening public meeting June 9th, and further public input received. The consultants, the committee and the Regional District Planners will then refine and edit until we have a version that is widely accepted. Then it goes to the Planners for refinement into the eventual amendments to the OCP.

How does it get built?

Once the plan is in place, then land owners may come forward with rezoning proposals that conform with the plan. The rezoning process will have the usual public consultations, so Quadra Islanders once again have their say. Then if rezoned, there will be development permits required for any multiple unit developments. This process also has public consultations, including the form and character of the buildings proposed, ground coverage etc. Naturally this whole process will take decades to produce significant changes in The Cove, and of course there have to be interested buyers and renters for any of this to happen.

Please mark your calendars for the June 9th public meeting- 7:00 to 9:00 at the Community Centre.

ISLAND FORUM

Dear Minister,

I am writing regarding the issue of fish feedlots off the west coast of British Columbia.

These feedlots need to be moved on land to closed containers or have closed containment in the water as in Puget Sound, off the coast of Washington State, U.S.A.

Fish feedlots have become infested with sea lice which are transmitted to wild salmon. These feedlots attract the wild salmon due to the food supply which is shipped from South America (Using fish stocks there in an unsustainable manner)

Sea Lice is found in the ocean and has always interacted with wild salmon BUT due to the heavy concentrations at fish feedlots is more prevalent there in one area.

By moving the fish feedlots on land people would still have jobs and the ocean would be free of concentrations of non native salmon(Atlantic farm fish)stock. And the wild salmon would not be attracted to these feedlots and infestations of sea lice as is happening today.

I do not understand how aqaculture can be sustainable by having to bring fish feed from South America, depleting stocks there for our own short term gain?

I ask you to come to the west coast as our minister responsible and see what is really happening here at this special time. Do not rely on data provided by the Norwegian aquaculture fish feedlot industry. Look at independent unbiased scientific sources to get the real picture as this tragedy unfolds in our beautiful province.

By moving to closed containers, or, even enclosed nets, every one wins. People are employed and wild salmon are free to migrate without interference from fish feedlots.

First nations can survive, bears can live,ocean life will thrive, even trees are enhanced in the forest by this god given species, as it has done for thousands of years.

The alternative is truly appalling, as death will surely cover the land, its wildife, it's forests will die and the first nations will be eliminated from the coast.(A form of Genocide right here in Canada)Please do not allow this to happen at this moment in our history when leadership is so badly needed by you Madam. Thank You.

I await your earliest reply Madam

Mrs Adel Routledge Cumberland,

Canwest Publishing, Dear Editor,

I know that newspapers are having a difficult time. Competition is fierce, readership is down and costs are rising. You have my sympathies. And I am sure that those circumstances have lead you to hire the least expensive reporters possible. That is just obvious standard business practice and not always bad. Young, inexperienced, still-wet-behindthe-ears apprentices get a chance at practicing their chosen profession. Good on you and good luck to them. Having said that, you should still strive for minimum levels of competence. Please. I'd suggest hiring reporters who can count at the very least. Accuracy is paramount in good reporting. Writing well is a bonus we have all gotten used to being without. You have come up short on both counts describing the Save the Salmon Rally. At this juncture and in my opinion, such mis-steps bode poorly for your publishing future and strongly suggest that reporters Katie and Judie, in particular, are literally in over their heads.

Consider: the days when getting facts from good reporters may be over due to costs. And the wire services and parent companies simply can't fill the bill for local news. Their corporate bias is showing up like a Janet Jackson wardrobe malfunction and propaganda seems to be their new agenda. It does not look good. And the public has stopped looking as a

You don't have many options if staying the course is anywhere in your current business plan. But you have one alternative that I can see: tell the truth. Think about it. It's novel. It's fantastic. It may even catch on. But it will be impossible if you stay hobbled by the aforedescribed incompetence in your staff. Get some journalistic integrity and you'll regain a readership hungry for honesty, desperate for heroes and willing to subscribe and pay for it.

Put more bluntly: Ms Morton is a hero. You could sell a million more subscriptions doing nothing more than finding and following people like her. First, teach Julie and Katie to count (they will need this in adulthood - it is the decent thing for their employer to do). Then introduce them to the story of Diogenes. And please consider taking a proactive if not heroic step in your industry and start telling the truth and 'doing the right thing'. You are overdue.

Sincerely, J. David Cox

The Great Bears Need Protection

What can you say about a politician that would promote the Olympics using the spirit bear of BC, and then turns around on April Fool's Day and legislates trophy hunting for Grizzly and Black Bears in the great bear rainforest preserve?

There was some kind if perverse thinking going on that day. Will we be the fools that have to take their grandchildren to the museum to see [the remains of] one of these magnificent animals?

The rich come here to trophy hunt from countries that have already decimated their wildlife. You should travel to rivers in Toba and Knight inlets. There are hunting platforms set up in the trees. Here great white hunters stand a blow grizzlies away while the bears feed on salmon in the fall.

How many urbanites would rush out to sign a petition on HST, while skinned-out carcasses are left on the estuaries and mountainsides of this beautiful province?

Wake up BC! Our government has prostituted wildlife to the tune of over 2000 grizzlies since taking office. What benfit will our children get from the heads and hides of these bears adorning the dens of rich business men?

REGIONAL DIRECTOR'S REPORT

___ by Jim Abram =

Area C

Tell, I have been back from my holiday for almost three weeks and it seems like it never happened. The first day back, I threw myself into an all day Board meeting in Campbell River. What a shock! There were important issues that needed to be dealt with so I just just jumped right back into the fire. The holiday was great and I even came back to sunny (tough cool) weather. Quadra looks beautiful at this time of year. So many vibrant greens!

This is going to be a really short report since I am in preparation mode for meeting with three Ministers in Victoria tomorrow regarding some current events here on Quadra. More on that front after I return. Never a dull moment!

And how about those road improvements at Rebecca Spit Park? I certainly heard about the condition of the road when it was in rough shape, but I have not heard anything about it since it was fixed. Are you happy with the improvements? It would be nice to know so that I can say to the Ministry of Parks that their work was greatly appreciated. Some emails would be great and then I can pass along the information to the appropriate parties. It will go a long way for future relations when we ask for more work to be done. I hope everyone will treat the road with care, as we will not be able to get this level of grading done all the time... so drive slowly and make it last! (it keeps the dust down also). The surface will be great for our upcoming Mayday celebrations.

Speaking of Mayday, I will not be able to attend this year for the first time since I have lived on Quadra due to the fact that I will be in Toronto at the Federation of Canadian Municipalities Annual General Meeting and convention. Local governments from right across the entire nation are represented at this gathering and it is always a wonderful infusion of energy, ideas and contacts. What I learn there is then brought home to be used in our own area for our benefit. I'll fill you in on anything exciting when I

I am expecting news on the Quathiaski Cove and the Heriot Bay sewer issues any day now. I have asked for a public meeting to be held when we have the information that has been gathered and it is ready to be presented. I know this has taken a long time but it has not been from lack of trying. There have been many obstacles and I think we are past those now and ready to get on with the projects.

I am very excited about the on-going Quathiaski Cove Village project. We continue to meet almost weekly and will be having another public meeting on June 9th. Please read the article that is provided by our consultant elsewhere in this edition to catch up on where we are at and where we are headed. Lots of notice will be given about the public meeting, so keep your eyes open!

I hope that you all have a wonderful Mayday!

Feel free to call me between the hours of 8:30 am and 7:00 pm, Monday through Friday (not on weekends, folks!) at 285-3355, or you can fax me at 285-3533 or you can email me anytime at jimabram@xplornet.ca, or by mail at Box 278 in the Cove, VOP 1N0... Lots of choices.

Please note my new email address.

Campbell River Arts Council Website Workshop

With rapidly changing technology and communication, it is almost impossible to do business without a website. Having a business presence on the internet is a must, especially for artists. Unfortunately developing a static website is expensive and it puts you at the mercy of a web master for any upgrades and/or revisions. But as website design continues to develop there are now other options than having to use a static site. Dynamic Website Design is now available. The Campbell River Arts Council is offering a workshop designed to assist people in creating their own dynamic website, one which the owner can maintain themselves. This workshop will be held at the Sybil Andrews Cottage on May 29, from 9:30 am to 3 pm. At the end of the workshop, you will be guaranteed of having a fully functioning registered Dynamic Website, one year web hosting and two hours of free technical support available online via email or Skype. All you need to bring to this one day workshop is the information you want to display on your website (such as text, pictures or video clips) on a computer or memory stick. There will be computers available, but if you prefer to use your own laptop, please bring it with you. Useable picture formats are gif, jpeg and png. Quadra Island Studio Tour

On June 5th and 6th, 2010, Quadra Island artists will once again open their studio doors for the 8th annual Quadra Island Studio Tour. Featuring the work of over 35 local artists, the Studio Tour incorporates a self-guided tour of Quadra's private studios and galleries, artist demonstrations, workshops and more. What better opportunity to explore the island while getting a glimpse of the creative process guiding some of Quadra's finest Paintings, pottery, perfectly cast and hand painted fish, art glass, hand built guitars, fabric art, sculpture, and jewelry are just a few of the things you'll encounter down Quadra's tree-lined driveways. This is "locally made" at its finest. Take a moment to chat with an artist as she finishes off an open-air sketch in the garden that inspired her, or learn how another artist was motivated to create detailed replicas of our abundant local marine life.

Over 15 studios will open for visitors. Artists without public studio space will be showing their work at the Quadra Community Centre, where there will also be a group exhibition. The Garden Terrace Café will again provide sumptuous prawn lunch specials, desserts, and hot and cold beverages.

Tickets for the tour are $5 each (kids under 13 free) and are available on the island from Hummingbird Office Supply, Quadra Crafts, resorts and the Tourist Info Booth.

The Studio Tour is presented by Quadra Island Artists, a member group of the Quadra Island Recreation Society and a volunteer organization that is dedicated to encouraging and promoting the visual arts on Quadra Island. Ancient Trees of Quadra Island, Update #1

The Ancient Tree Inventory for Quadra Island has been welcomed by everyone (dozens), with whom we have talked these past few months. To date, about 114 Douglas Firs have been located and measured. Other trees, Sitka Spruce, Hemlock, Balsam Fir, White Pine, total 42 trees. We will be following up on 3 new locations, provided to us in early May. The details for the Valdez Road Giant (pole 37) were sent, to the Ministry of Forests, Ancient Tree Inventory. At 24 feet DBH (data at breast height) it fits into the top 15 (living) Douglas Firs for British Columbia.

Two other Douglas Firs at about 22 Ft C (7.m) have been located. One is in Village Bay Lakes Provincial Park and the other is in a protected zone within a woodlot.

It has been an utterly exhilarating experience to hike the numerous Quadra Trails (thanks to the Trails Committee for their decades of wonderful work), with the intent of locating the Ancient Trees (250 years or older). Hiking the trails, you become increasingly aware of the significant differences between the landscape and topographies, such as between Nugedzi Lake and Gowlland Harbour Trails.

The scope of the project continues to expand, with many thanks to the hundreds of people around British Columbia who also scour the forests doing their inventories. They have written information postings and created internet links. A common concern is the Provincial Government/ Liberal's on-going policy to permit the cutting and raw log export of the ancient trees. The remaining logging companies, willingly support the Government policy - all as a means to prop up share holders stock values. Ongoing is the apparent disregard by the Corporations' (Teal & Jones, Timber West etal) for even minimal social and economic needs - let alone giving any notice of concern for the retention of Ancient Trees and intact ancient ecosystems.

Thanks For Sweeping That Broom At The Spit

Big thanks to the hardy souls who came out once again this year on May 2nd to deal with the remaining broom. We were very busy for two hours and managed to cut or pull all the flowering broom we could see. Very gratifying. I'm sure that the young plants we missed will be blooming next year and very easy to see then.

A big thank you also to the anonymous folk who saw the 'Please pull some broom' sign in the patch at the end of the field and pulled absolutely all of it! A very good thing, as we were running out of time and energy by the time we checked

I encourage Spit users to pull broom anytime but note: if seed pods are forming please don't leave it but take it out or to the dumpster.

The native butterflies thank you. Riki 2640

B.C. Government Launches "Parks 100" Celebrations

VICTORIA - BC Parks is gearing up to celebrate its 100th birthday on March 1, 2011, and today Minister of Environment Barry Penner officially launched the Parks 100 celebrations by highlighting the historic role and legacy of BC's incredible network of parks.

"The BC government is thrilled to host a province-wide celebration in commemoration of 100 years of B.C.'s provincial parks," said Penner. "Our goal is to inspire pride in British Columbians and encourage involvement in a number of celebrations connected to Parks 100."

Minister Penner stood up in the B.C. Legislature today to read the Strathcona Centennial Expedition Proclamation, issued by the Honourable Steven L. Point, British Columbia's Lieutenant Governor. The proclamation marks the Strathcona Centennial Expedition as the official re-enactment of the 1910 expedition.

In 1910, the B.C. Minister of Lands Price Ellison led a team of 23 people on an expedition of the Buttle Lakes region on Vancouver Island (now a part of Strathcona Provincial Park). Following the 39 day exploration, Ellison gave a glowing report to the BC government of the day, and the approval to create a park was granted. Strathcona Provincial Park was established on March 1, 1911 as the first provincial park in British Columbia. Since then, BC Parks has grown to one of the largest and most impressive park systems in the world.

To celebrate this landmark anniversary, the Strathcona Centennial Expedition and BC Parks will partner to re-enact the original 1910 expedition through Strathcona Provincial Park to Port Alberni, including an ascent of Crown Mountain, in July 2010. The expedition will follow the original historic route as closely as possible.

"This is an exciting opportunity to celebrate the history of BC's first provincial park and pay homage to the foresight of Ellison and Premier McBride in establishing the parks system we now know and love." said Philip Stone, Head of the Strathcona Centennial Expedition. "As pressures increase worldwide on wild places British Columbians have a special duty to conserve and treasure Strathcona and all our BC Parks for the future."

In addition to the Strathcona Centennial Expedition, there will be several other Parks 100 celebrations in parks across the province throughout 2010 and 2011. The celebrations will engage a diversity of rural and urban communities, First Nations, youth and sector areas such as arts, heritage, and tourism in events, activities and conservation projects.

Free Stuff

The Free Firewood program at the Quadra Community Centre worked well this winter. 15 cords of wood were distributed to needy families and individuals. Everyone, regardless of income level, had the opportunity to keep warm this past winter. Thanks to our local loggers who supplied us with over 40 cords of wood and to the Green Knights for chopping some of it up.

Free Money was given out from November to April on the third Wednesday of the month. Thanks to the weavers at the Quadra Market for raising most of the money. Ten dollars is given to each & every family member to a household in need. The total cost of the program is only $3,000 a year. We, of course, are still looking for that mystery millionaire who will support the program. No luck yet!

The Free Book lending library at the Q.C.C. has had over 200 people borrowing best-selling books in high demand that have long, long waiting lists at our local library.

This summer there will be a variety of free live music at the Quadra Saturday Market, including First Pressing, Sunday Dennis, Jazz Berry Jam, Quadra "LIght" Singers, Castaway, Quadra Drummers, Hal Douglas & Julie Frank and many more. Donations to our local musicians are always welcome. Thanks to Spirit Books and Book Bonanza for co-sponsoring last week's

There has also been a movement to make wild free fish available to people who fish. As you know it is illegal to put your fishing pole in a fish farm, but the fish in the ocean are still available although rapidly declining in numbers. That's why 300 Quadra residents packed the Quadra Community Centre and 40 Quadra folks came to Victoria (2 individuals walked all the way!) to protect wild salmon and other fish.

Also, the food bank and the Community Lunch are doing an excellent job. The money made from the Community Lunch donations goes to support the Food Bank. The Community Lunch happens every week but next week is the last one for the season. Unfortunately, the Food Bank only allows needy local residents access to food just once a

In many ways, Quadra is a leader in providing the necessities of life to all it's residents on a volunteer basis, sometimes completely free of charge. Even the problem of homelessness is not the serious problem it is in other communities, like Campbell River. However, there is one area where all our surrounding communities have got us beat when it comes to free stuff. Campbell River, Cumberland, Courtenay & Cortes Island all have free parking. Cumberland and Cortes all the time. Campbell River and Courtenay for 2 or 3 hours. We, of course, have pay parking at the ferry. Thus, the problem on Green Road and now the all day parkers at the Q.Cove Shopping Centre, just when the tourists are coming. Alot of frustration could be solved by restoring free parking at the ferry.

There has been some criticisms of the various free programs by foks suggesting that people should earn more money instead. I & many others completely agree.

Therefore, we are looking forward to establishing a $10 an hour minimum wage on Quadra Island. After all, the Onatrio legal minimum wage is $10.25 an hour. Unfortunately B.C. has the lowest minimum wage of any province at $8 an hour. Many thanks to the Coastal Credit Union who start tellers at $20 an hour & Walcan wh pay $15 to new staff and Quadra Foods who also start folks at $10 an hour. The more employers who join the program, the less need there will be for

by Sue Krose

Dear Sue: I know a balanced meal is important, so I make sure I include the four food groups in my son's lunch. But I'm confused ... Are Gummi Bears meat

A. You're not confused. You're stupid. People come in different flavours colours and nobody thinks they're fruits, except maybe Butch, my decorator. You don't have a nutrition question you have a moral problem. A lot of 'Stars' have jumped on the Save the Gummi bandwagon in recent weeks but think about this. Gummi Bears eat only two things: Fruit and rubber trees. Unless you want to ride around in a car with wooden wheels, I suggest you eat as many Gummi Bears as you can. Nutritionally, Gummies don't pack the same amount of protein as salmon, especially if you go for farmed salmon with a side of deep fried sea lice.

Dear Sue: What does MSG stand for? Wallace Darwin

A. It's obvious that, despite your name, natural selection didn't select for brains. To be fair my son thought it meant More Salt God. We put him in a corner for two days and laughed at him so he doesn't think that any more. (My book on parenting is coming out soon. Be the first to order.) It stands for Monosodium Glutamate. Many 'real' nutritionists and so-called 'doctors' think MSG raises blood pressure. But let's think for a second. MSG has fully one-third the sodium of TSG. Any blood pressure elevation is due to worry not the sodium. To understand this you have to know two things: first, sodium reacts very strongly with water; second, MSG is stored in your butt (that's the Glute part of the name). The problem for people who eat a lot of MSG, and I mean a lot, is that occasionally when they get diarrhea they go up like Roman candles. Hence the worry.

Quadra Island Seniors-Branch 91

B.C. Old Age Pensioners Organization

On May 5th, we had a speaker Reg Wescott and a Falcon named Scarlett from Mountainaire Avian Rescue. The discussion with the members was very rewarding. Reg discussed many issues, about Hummingbirds and how they migrate on their own and not on the feathers of large birds. He also spoke about a recent incident which happened at the Campbell River Landfill site. Eagles were eating a carcus of a dead pet dog who had been put to sleep by a chemical drug. The owners of the animal had taken the dog to the dump, not thinking about toxic chemical which had been used. Normally Vetinarians cremate animals, to prevent an incident like this. The Rescue group whom Reg Wescott volunteers his time with has been trying to save the birds. An apprentice was also at our meeting to learn, so she can help the group continue to do work to save baby Hummingbirds as big as a peanut, to larger stupendous birds like Eagles. A donation was made towards the group.

Martin Amiabel is now the Regional Director of the North Island, for our seven branches. Ruth Amiabel is the alternate, and was elected to be the delegate to the 2010 B.C.O.A.P.O. Come at 10:00 a:m for a coffee and a book browse and chat, Win Smirfitt will chair the meeting which starts at 10:30 a:m.

Lunch will follow at 12:00 p:m, Come and meet our members who try to make a better and rewarding life for Seniors. On July 14th 2010, at 11:00a:m, we will be attending our N.I. Small-farm defender, Joel Salatin, leads a day-long seminar on Cortes Island.

On Saturday September 25, 2010, Friends of Channel Rock will host a day-long seminar led by Joel Salatin. He is a sought-after writer, speaker and farmer who speaks in defense of small farms, local food systems and the right to opt out of the conventional food paradigm.

The Friends of Channel Rock Society will host a day-long seminar in Manson's Landing on Cortes Island on Saturday September 25th, 2010. The seminar will be led by sought-after writer and speaker, Joel Salatin. a 3rd generation alternative farmer from Virginia's Shenandoah Valley.

Polyface Inc. reached fame when it was featured in the New York Times bestseller Omnivore's Dilemma by food writer and guru, Michael Pollan.

His farm services more than 1,500 families, 10 retail outlets and 30 restaurants through on-farm sales and metropolitan buying clubs with salad bar beef, pastured poultry, eggmobile eggs, pigaerator pork, forage-based rabbits, pastured turkey and forestry products using relationship marketing. HALLIDAY'S VIEWPOINT

by Steven Halliday

I've always been a passionate fan of blue jeans. I grew up in an era when jeans were not permitted in school, though I was fortunate to see the repeal of this ridiculous dictate before entering senior high.

My first "real" job was selling clothing at The Bay; more specifically selling jeans and other casual apparel out of the "317" department, an adjunct to young men's wear named after the Levi 317 model boot cut jean. From there I advanced to Men's Dress Wear, where my shoulder-length blond locks rested on the shoulders of a suit coat or blazer at least, and many customers were somewhat taken aback by an 18-year old kid selling custom tailored suits as well as off the rack. After my departure from the Bay I got a job that was more industrial in nature, and permitted jeans as uniform. College followed (briefly, where of course jeans were de rigueur), and then I joined the ranks of the "suits" as a bank management trainee.

As a trainee in the late seventies, our very modest paycheque allowed only polyester rather than gabardine, and anyone who was a conscious adult in 1979 may remember the predominance of checked or striped wide leg-low hipped pants, paired with brightly coloured shirts with long high collars and contrasting ties at least 6" wide at the beltline. Long hair was becoming condoned if not accepted, but the wearing of a necktie was an absolutely nonnegotiable element of working in a world where suffering a noose is a requirement of servitude. I truly developed a hatred for ties in about 1987, just shy of the 10th anniversary of wearing a snare around my neck on a daily basis. In 1988 I was truly fortunate to be appointed to a position in Alert Bay, where ties only make an appearance at weddings, funerals and Remembrance Day, and even on those occasions only spottily.

I relished my newfound freedom from the neck up accordingly when the occasion arose, such as khaki's for Board meetings and visits from people forced to wear suits; right up to wearing a sport jacket with my khaki's for Annual General Meetings. With my new career I am in heaven. As a small businessman and professional I need to present myself accordingly if I expect the respect and trust of my customers, while the nature of my business provides innumerable opportunities to get dirty. Let's face it folks - nobody brings in a clean vacuum for repairs. So practicality dictates that I wear comfortable, durable and washable clothing to work....a perfect definition of jeans. For many years I was a Levi's man, as their 501 boot cut was just the right style for me as I occasionally indulged in cowboy boots. Today, I'm a Dakota wearer, for two simple reasons. They're built better than Levi's and they cost about half the price. But then again, even when I was selling Levi's back in 1976 or so I bought GWG's, which were cheaper than Levi's and had more rivets. So in actual fact I've only been a Levi's wearer since Norma has been buying me jeans, though she's the one that discovered Dakota's a few years ago. But I digress...

The point of this story is that Quadra provides a wonderful example of a place where dressing as one feels like is an accepted component of residency...I use our predilection for gum boots as example. When one has occasion to reflect on the stresses that our metropolis-dwelling cousins suffer on a day by day basis, recognition by corporate grand Pooh-Bahs that silk ties, $1,000 suits, designer dresses and stiletto heels do nothing to add to employee productivity or well being in any measurable manner, and would be huge step forward...right up there with minimum wage and the 40-hout workweek, I'd bet. Speaking personally, it's done wonders for my stress elimination program, and I'm pretty certain Norma would agree. She's been a "professional in jeans" while working at a logging company office and presently at the Western Star truck dealership, and I know for a fact she spends a lot less time ironing. Even though she irons her jeans. Dress for success is a fallacy established in a prior age - dress for comfort and practicality is the more sensible approach. Someday soon "they" will figure it out.

to be a Trustee for a time. Jack incessantly needled me about not wearing a tie...usually three sheets to the wind at the Legion, still wearing his tie after a 12 hour day on the job, at 78 plus years old...until I reminded him that he had graduated from medical school over 50 years prior, and whether he liked it or not he was a dinosaur fashion-wise. Jack Pickup didn't even own a pair of jeans. I, on the other hand, used to throw off my work pants immediately upon arrival at home after work and slipped on my worn, comfortable and somewhat ragged jeans, raggedness depending on their particular vintage or cleanliness, whichever I noticed first. Putting them on was like loosening a neck tie, but far less of a relief, as no other piece of clothing has ever constricted my breathing or blood flow. Putting on a pair of comfortably worn jeans is damn near the best thing to slipping into a well time-molded pair of slippers after a day spent on one's feet.

Moving to Quadra allowed me to continue my casual code as adopted in Alert Bay - in a remarkable coincidence, the only person wearing a tie with any frequency on Quadra was another doctor... Dr. Francis; I quickly instituted Jeans Day at the Credit Union every Friday. No staff member complained though a few die-hards (generally of an earlier generation...preboomer, shall we say) stuck to their dress slacks, and I never once had a member or Board complaint regarding staff attire. As the years went by the Credit Union's dress code evolved to "clean and presentable - we're not style police", and I often tested it to the extreme, as Norma would attest. She is the determiner in my life of when new jeans are in order, though I do have a couple of beauties hidden away in case of emergency that wouldn't pass her muster for a moment. When we bought our little farm on Cape Mudge Road (with the associated long live-in renovation period that followed) I took it as license to dress down at work, as whenever I had opportunity I dashed off to check up on the job site, which of course is a very dirty place. After the renovations finished in 2005 I kind of forgot that I was supposed to wear khaki slacks to work, most of the time. I did, however, dress

Salmon Migration Rally - A Follow Up

It is shameful that of all the Victoria / Vancouver radio and television media, only the Global News Network accurately reported on the May 8 Victoria protest against open net fish farming. Approximately 50 Quadra Islanders were part of the walk from Centennial Square and were present at the rally at the Legislature Buildings. I was amongst them. Some of us who were in the front of the walk were fortunate to find a place to stand on the steps of the Legislature, and from there were able to watch as the migration of other protesters arrived, a river of people which just kept coming and coming until a enormous crowd was gathered on the lawn of the Legislature.

Global News estimated there were 5,000 of us. The photos at salmonaresacred.org sĥow a truer reflection of the number of people present. (See this website for a link to Global's coverage.) As Alex Morton noted, we were "a powerful, peaceful, huge community of people.

At the rally, one of the speakers was Thea Block, a grade 10 student from Cortes Island who won the "Create your Canada" contest held last year by Victoria NDP MP Denise Savoie. Thea's idea to move salmon farming to closed containment inspired a private members bill which on May 5 was introduced by Vancouver's NDP Fisheries and Oceans Critic Fin Donnelly. Thea was in the gallery and chalked "salmon are sacred" on the steps at Parliament Hill.

Bill C-518 directs the Federal Fisheries Minister to develop, table and implement a transition plan, outlining how fish farm operations will make the move to closed containment systems. The plan would also ensure that those currently working in the industry will be protected during the transition. There is a link to the wording of Bill C-518 at

Denise Savoie's website. (http:// denisesavoie.ndp.ca/)

We must now make known our support for this Bill. As Alex says, once again it is up to us. Here are some of the ways you can help. Write to our MP John Duncan asking him to get salmon farms out of our oceans and send a copy to Fin Donnelly. Write to our MLA Claire Trevena asking her to convey your support for landbased aquaculture. Write to MP Fin Donnelly to say you support his bill, and copy your letter to Fisheries Minister Gail Shea. Look at 'How to Help' on the salmonaresacred. org website, for a list of other ideas, and don't forget to sign the onsite

Without doubt there are pressures other than fish farms on wild salmon stocks, global warming and overfishing amongst them; but the move to closed containment will eliminate the predation of sea lice on juvenile salmon, which is wreaking havoc on wild salmon stocks in every country where open net pens are being used as feed lots.

As an added incentive for fish farming companies, some large food chains are opting to buy salmon only from the now existing U.S. land based farms. Further proof of the viability of land-based systems is the recent report of the Save Our Salmon Marine Conservation Foundation report. "The report concludes that land-based closed containment is technically and economically feasible and that the design presented in the study would allow for substantial reductions in both capital and operating expenses." Land-based closed containment salmon aquaculture report released

Port McNeill - The SOS Marine Conservation Foundation has released a technology report concluding that land-based closed containment salmon aquaculture is technically and economically feasible.

The Report, entitled "Technologies for Viable Salmon Aquaculture", has been extensively reviewed by aquaculture experts and will remain in the public domain (see www. saveoursalmon.ca). It was recently presented at the Simon Fraser University workshop on landbased closed containment salmon aquaculture and is another step towards the SOS Foundation's goal of helping to establish B.C. as a leader in a globally renowned, stable and viable finfish aquaculture industry.

The technology report was prepared by Dr. Andrew S. Wright as part of the SOS Foundation's strategy to support research and to produce educational materials that increase understanding of the ecosystem and methods of protecting and conserving it.

Dr. Wright's research confirms that all components required to build a full recirculation land-based closed containment salmon farm are available as commercial off-the-shelf items.

Specifics are provided for a facility that would yield 1,000 metric tons (MT) of full-grown fish and a supplementary 500 to 750 MT of early harvest fish annually. Atlantic or Pacific salmon species could be produced.

The Report provides conservative economic forecasts with the acknowledgement that refinement of the design would allow for substantial reductions in both capital and operating expenses.
