ISLAND FORUM

When a tree falls...

First, I was shocked. Then, appalled and angry but now, mostly just plain sad to have witnessed so many private landowners clearcutting part or all of the trees on their properties lately.

Like...really? Cutting all those trees in spring? C'mon people, give your head a shake!

Clearly, doing this in the spring when the songbirds have returned to build their nests and most creatures who inhabit tree branches and hollows are caring for their young, is selfish and careless.

Because WE need to feed our families, WE feel entitled to do what WE please on "our " properties. The price of logs went up and down goes the trees without any consideration for all other species who live in them and are now homeless or simply lose all their young due to our actions.

I have watched three baby racoons run aimlessly over a pile of logs that had just been cut one evening on a walk in my neighbourhood and it broke my heart. Why can't we consider other species while doing what we "need" to do? Who are WE with this sense of entitlement?

Well, we are Quadra islanders, neighbours and friends, who chose to live here because it is so beautiful and because we love nature, remember? We do annual bird count and proudly post the results and save injured animals when we can and yet, we don't think twice when money speaks it seems.

Clear cutting is bad enough as it is but if you "must" do this, PLEASE in the name of all the families who lost their homes and their young and do not speak your language, pick another time of the year next time you plan to do this. Simply because the forest is a social network too and within hours we change or destroy the habitat for hundreds, even thousands of living organisms the WE also depend on for life on this island.

Name withheld because I do like my neighbours, just not what they do sometimes...

Time for a Refuse Solution?

Dear Quadra Islanders

Its the start of another summer, with hot sunny days, where we welcome tourists, workers and seasonal residents to this beautiful island and invite thousands more people to partake of our excellent services, amenities and recreational activities here on Quadra Island.

We also have people come and work at providing the services everyone enjoys here. Just one problem. We ignore the practical logistics of having thousands of extra people around, twice the normal population or more.
No one tells our welcome and expected guests that there is nowhere for them to dispose of trash they may accumulate during their trip. They are expected to pack it with them until the time of their departure, no matter how smelly or gross it may get sitting in their hot vehicle. There are no socially acceptable, or legal options, to dispose of any garbage, for anyone other than residents who live on the route of the garbage truck on one day a week. There is a recycling centre for a selection of clean items, and if they visit during the summer, they can't burn the burnables in a fire.

If one reads the online forums it is obvious we have a serious problem. Every couple of days it comes up, with suggestions of fines and public shaming, blaming the individual when there are no facilities to deal with the trash generated by a signifiant portion of the people who live here, not to mention visitors who come unprepared for the extreme lack of garbage disposal options. Aren't we being a little hypocritical in this regard? I am sure a lot of the resulting garbage problems would be solved by having a pay per bag dumpster located in some central area of the island, or a coin operated compactor, so that the thousands of extra people spending the summer months on Quadra who have no access to home garbage pick up had some kind of reasonable option.

Sincerely,
Rena Patrick

Quadra Islanders Rally for Wild Salmon!

After promising never to return to the Cyrus Rocks site up in Okisollo Channel, Marine Harvest (now called Mowi) very quietly changed their minds and decided to drop a salmon farm in there anyway. Brazenly they situated it in the heart of a 3,500 year old clam garden area, and mere meters away from our Octopus Islands Marine Park. Elected Chief of Homalco First Nations, Darren Blaney, says he was never consulted and was totally surprised as well as upset they were just forcing their way around in his territorial waters. Islanders were upset as well. Claudia Lake put out a call for action on facebook for May 28th and with a few days notice we prepared to rally!

From far and wide families and friends carrying signs and flags, came in their boats, canoes and kayaks, around 22 vessels and 65 people made it to our flotilla protest. Whistling, hollering and cheering each other on, so much love for our wild salmon and this coast. We let it be known to Mowi they should be moving to land, not building more farms. Media showed up and fortunately this time we got some much needed publicity.

While we were at Cyrus Rocks, Chief

Darren Blaney and his lawyers were meeting with the farmers and by the end of the day, the industry giant placed a stop work order on the site...for now anyway.

Quadra Island is surrounded by salmon farms, they're located mostly in Okisollo channel which is a major migration route for wild salmon. While problems plaguing the farms are many, (drug resistant sea lice infestations, wild fish getting lured into the pens with bright lights at night and eaten by the farms fish) the most challenging issue right now is dealing with their imported diseases, and Piscine Reovirus (PRV) which can turn into HSMI (Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation) tops the list.

According to Gary Marty, the provincial fish health pathologist, over 90% of farmed Atlantic salmon are infected with PRV. While Dr Marty who works closely with the industry, tries to convince us and our Minister of Fisheries that this exotic virus is harmless to our wild stocks, new information reveals that it's anything but...

Because the minister believes the virus is harmless, he's refusing to screen farmed fish for it, yet his own scientists at Dept of Fisheries and Oceans tell him PRV is indeed causing disease in our wild fish.

In 2017, a team of international scientists led by DFO scientists diagnosed the disease HSMI in a BC salmon farm in Okisollo Channel in the Discovery Islands (DiCicco et al 2017). This announcement was a new problem for the minister because up until then his policy not to test farmed fish for PRV relied on the assumption it does not cause the disease HSMI in British Columbia

DFO scientists also tell us that our wild Chinook salmon seem to be especially vulnerable to PRV as it makes their blood cells explode en masse, and the lack of Chinook salmon is the main reason our southern resident Orca are starving.

And one cannot ignore that PRV is also the reason Washington recently shut down their salmon farms, and why they're asking us to follow suit.

So what's being done about it? Sadly not much. While only a fool would do so, it's against the law to put a fish with a disease agent into Canadian waters, yet our Minister of Fisheries won't order the testing of farmed fish for PRV before they leave the farms hatcheries and are moved into open net pens. The science does not support his stance, and so he's been taken to court twice by Alexandra Morton and Eco Justice as well as by the 'Namgis First Nations, and he's lost each time. Still he disregards both court orders, siding instead with the billion dollar salmon farming industry to not screen for PRV.

And it gets worse...

When the scientists reported that PRV causes HSMI here in BC, instead of changing his policy in response to the finding and order testing of farmed salmon for PRV, the Minister decided to up the threshold and move the goal posts. Without any studies to support his claim, now the minister says PRV is not killing "enough" fish and won't consider it a threat to wild salmon unless it kills an entire farm. Therein lies the crux as PRV generally doesn't kill an entire salmon farm, it only weakens their fish until they can barely move.

A salmon in a farm can recover from the PRV virus by resting and lying motionless on the surface for weeks in a pen surrounded by food and predator nets, but a wild salmon wouldn't have that luxury. A slow weakened wild salmon wouldn't be able to catch prey, nor make the arduous journey upstream to spawn, and they would be quickly taken out by a whale, eagle or sea lion.

The courts gave the minister until June 4th to change his policy on PRV testing and on June 3rd he was back in the courtroom. Alexandra Morton sat in to watch the drama unfold and wrote about what she saw.

Alexandra Morton - "Today 'Namgis and my lawyers made the best of a bad situation. Despite being ordered by the court, DFO failed to consult with 'Namgis. Incredibly rude in my opinion. So we reached an agreement wherein the Minister MUST consult between now and Oct 5 on whether or not he is going to screen farm salmon for PRV. This is an exhausting and expensive process we are engaged in on behalf of the whole coast. While the Minister has not told Canadians WHY he won't screen farm salmon for PRV despite losing repeated lawsuits, MOWI (Marine Harvest) has told us. They state THEY would be "severely impacted" if the Minister didn't allow them to put infected fish in their farms... If there was any shorter way to solve this legal marathon, we would be on it, but there isn't. Meanwhile the fish farmers are free to pour PRV-infected fish into their farms and allow wild salmon to become infected and carry the virus to the north coast, up rivers and into Washington State, the Columbia River, Oregon and California. Yes, I am angry and sad and exhausted. Our planet is crumbling under our abuse and the Minister of Fisheries thinks it's OK to let Atlantic salmon pour into the Pacific without virus screening."

So here we are, while a 5 year old child could easily figure out it's wrong to put infected fish into open waters, the minister waits until election month to decide whether or not to test for PRV and our wild fish continue to suffer. Wild Salmon need us to be their voice, and I encourage everyone to write or phone the minister and demand he do the right thing. Tell him that salmon farms need to move to land based facilities, where fantastic new technology RAS systems are being built worldwide. The construction of land based farms would employ many people short term, while providing full time jobs for those who are working on the farms now.

While there are many factors, climate and man made affecting our wild fish, salmon farms have many glaringly obvious problems and we need to get them out of our waters. The future of this coast lies in our hands.

Jonathan Wilkinson - Pacific office of DFO in Vancouver, Communications branch (604) 666-0384

 Executive Director
 Quadra Island Community Centre

Our May Queen's Speech

Welcome everyone to Mayday 2019

I am Hazel Neri Eley.

I am happy to be here with my escort Keller Brown and my princesses Ayla Anctil, Ava Saumier, Libby Volk, and Naomi Teneycke and their escorts Fionn Lenahan, Elijah Mohs, Jacob Henry, and Marten Hamel. I am so grateful to have them here with me today.

To me Mayday has always been a time where family and friends can relax, hang out, visit, and have a lot of fun together. My mom once told me that her first Mayday was in 1998 which was the 100th anniversary of Mayday.

When researching I found some interesting activities that happened for the 100th anniversary. There was a lot of old time crafts and demonstrations, the Quadra quilters made a commemorative quilt that hangs at the community centre. There was a reunion of May Queens dating back to 1923. It is highly possible that there are past May Queens here today, as well as May Queens of the future. Ever since I found out the theme was "wild" I was excited to see everyone's great costumes, floats, and ideas in the parade and I was not disappointed. I hope you all have a WILD May Day this year.

May Day 2018 Moments

What to do about Cats and Birds...?

Ah, spring!... long days and the lovely sound of birds.... Your cat is probably interested in that as well! The statistics on bird mortality from domestic cats is alarming. According to a study by Environment Canada, cats are the leading cause of bird mortality by a long shot - 200 million a year in Canada! That sad statistic is followed by power lines (25 million), collisions with buildings (25 million) and vehicle collisions (14 million). The next 6 causes listed - hunting, pesticides, agricultural mowing, commercial forestry and communications towers - only add another 12 million. (Notice that wind turbines did not even make that top 10 list...) The math reveals that cat predation accounts for almost 3 times as many bird deaths as the other causes combined!!

But what can one do - it's in the cat's nature.... Well - there is one easy solution that we have tried and found to be effective with our own predator, Lily. I was sent an article about bird safe collars by a friend and was impressed by the idea. These chic and fashionable accessories for your cat work on the same principle as high-vis safety vests on humans. Birds see the red part of the light spectrum best and their eye structure is dialed in to notice anything red and moving in the landscape. A study of the effectiveness of the collars done by St Lawrence University found that they reduce bird kills by cats by a whopping 87%! And better yet, they found that they did not have the same effect on rodent kills (rodents are not as dialed in to red-spectrum awareness), so kitty can still help reduce the rodent load around the property.

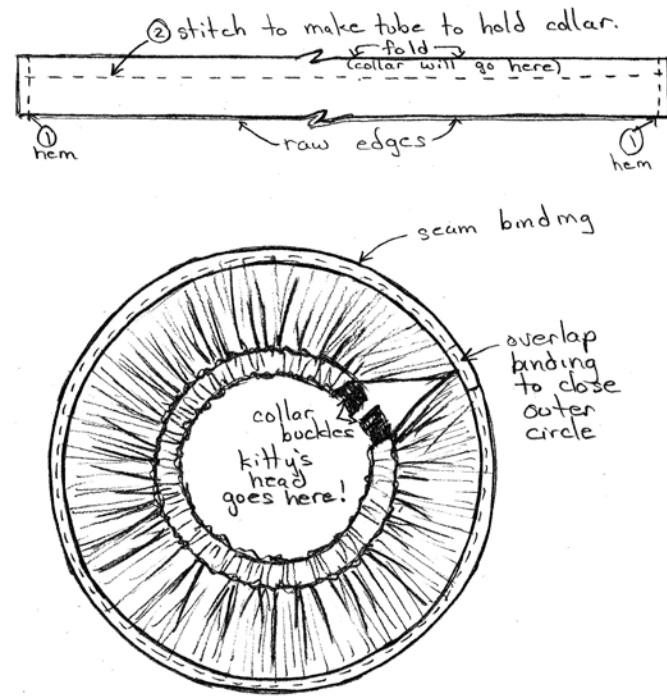

You can buy these collars from birdsbesafe.com. They have several attractive designs to choose from and these are sure to become the neighbourhood fashion statement.

Or you can make one. Being a DIY type, I made Lily's and it was easy. Here's how:

Materials:

- strip of red (patterned is ok) fabric, 6 in x 36 in (prewashed to shrink it)
- 36 in. red seam binding
- break-away cat collar (the kind that will open if given significant stress, preventing your cat from getting hung up on branches etc... safety first!)

1. Sew a hem on both short sides of your length of fabric to give it a finished edge.

2. Fold fabric in half, right side out and sew along the length, about 3/4 inch from the fold side. This makes a tube through which you will insert the collar. It is a good idea to check the buckles on your collar and make sure that the width of the tube you are sewing will accommodate the buckle being pushed through later...

3. Line up the unfinished outer edges and sew the seam binding along it to finish that edge and to make the collar's fringe stiffer to stand away from the cat. AND - be sure to carry the seam binding across the gap to join the outer edge in a continuous circle (otherwise it does not stand away from the cat's neck, but flops along its shoulders like a cape)

4. Insert the break-away cat collar through the inside tube (it helps to insert a 8 inch length of stiff wire through the buckle, fold that in half, and use that as a "needle" to push through the tube).

5. Put in a few stitches through the tube and the collar to keep the collar from retracting back through the tube

6. Place around kitty's head and click the buckle closed. It will take a little while for kitty to get used to wearing it, but Lily accepted it quite quickly and then seemed quite happy going outdoors with it on.

The birds in your neighbourhood will thank you...

<https://qioutdoorclub.org/trips/trip-schedule/schedule-summer-2019/>

Stay tuned as this schedule evolves.

We are fortunate to again have Bill West-Sells guiding us in caves near Sayward. This is an opportunity to see something completely different. We have three multi-day trips planned in the near future. These all require additional planning, lead-time, equipment and experience. Please let the coordinator know as soon possible if you are interested. We will hike up to the new Alpine Club hut at the 5040 Peak and explore that area. We will be kayaking in the Sutil Channel area to some of our favourite destinations. Later in July, we will have a multi-day, campground-based trip to Woss Lookout, the Huson Caves and other nearby points of interest. But we will also have lots of local trips, and the swimming season will soon be here.

Streamkeepers Course

QUADRA SALMON ENHANCEMENT Society has arranged for Dave Clough to give a Streamkeepers 1 course on October 26 and 27 (Sat/Sun) at the EcoCentre on Hyacinthe Bay Rd. Dave Clough is enthusiastic, very knowledgeable, and extremely experienced in giving this course.

Mornings will feature class work with the afternoons for salmon stream observation and wetland study. Many of us on Quadra live near a salmonid stream; even seasonal streams (with summer 'puddles') probably have cutthroat trout in them. Looking after them is more important than ever nowadays with habitat degradation, loss, and the growing impacts of climate change.

The cost of the weekend course is a nominal $0 to $30 for printed materials. For more information or if you would like to attend please let me know as soon as possible as places are filling quickly.

Green Party Candidate at QCC

Tuesday June 18th, 7 pm at the Quadra Community Centre there will be a gathering to meet Mark De Bruijn, listen to him and ask questions. Mark is the Green Party candidate for the North Island- Powell River Riding in the upcoming Federal Election. Everybody is welcome!

Mark describes himself and his approach:

The politics of the past are incapable of providing leadership for the rapid and profound change that our country must embrace if we are to continue calling Earth our home. That is why I am running as the candidate for the Green Party of Canada to represent North Island-Powell River in a new government in Ottawa.

As a trained scientist and a professional educator and administrator, I have the qualities, skills and experience to help tackle the many social, environmental and economic issues facing our riding. Having served on boards and practiced sustainable living in intentional community, I know the importance of collaboration, cooperation and teamwork to get things done.

This riding has been my home for the past 22 years. I love this place. Whether it's support for small business, affordable housing, fossil fuel transport, the health of wild fish, or the increasing floods, fires and droughts caused by global warming, Greens, have sound, practical and fiscally responsible policies to chart a new path to resilience, prosperity and health.

The Green Party is truly different. Our vision and our policy is rooted in 6 core guiding principles, which we will not abandon to chase votes or gain power. We are part of a global community of Greens who all share the same values. In a time when our biggest challenges are global, these friendships will be a great help.

Oh, yes, for fun and fitness, I coach Nordic skiing, and with my partner, Carol, kayak BC's endless coastline and cycle the Island's byways. Perhaps we will meet each other there!

Quadra Cycloquest: The MAYhem Edition - What was that?

On the May long weekend, Quadra Island hosted a non-competitive, community bike ride celebrating the social side of cycling.

About 100 visitors joined 50 local cyclists and friends for a treasure hunt to special island places, where Island time was whatever you wanted it to be: a rush to collect points and kilometers or simply a day to savour all that Quadra has to offer. The quest encouraged visits to local businesses and the riders spent generously. Even though it was a busy weekend, islanders graciously shared the road and at the end of the day, everyone gathered for awards and a great meal at the Heriot Bay Inn.

This event could not have happened without generous community support. A very special thank-you goes out to the organizing committee, business sponsors and the volunteers that offered their time and creativity to make the day such a resounding success:

Alex Hare, Amy Palumbo, Andrea Blasekie, Andrea Maylone and the Quadra Ambulance crew, Bev Barclay, Captain Sharon Clandening and all the First Responders, Carrie Ford, Casey Inrig, Chris Winkelaar, Christi Edwards and the Heriot Bay Inn staffers that went out of their way to help create the magic, Corporal Sean Bulford, Crystal Mar, Danielle Hagen, Dave Lounsbury, Dave Sharrock, Diana McKerracher, Gareth Balson, Hailey Lounsbury, Hannah Davis, Heather Kent, Helene Arsenault, Helene Lepage, Jerzy Dymny, Jim Thievin, Jodie Duncan, John Barclay, Juliette Nimmon, Kailee Mar, Kurt Hagen, Lawren McNab, Linda Van Der Minne, Nadine Mar, Nancy Alwarden, Nicolas Manders, Pamela Goijberg, Peter Kinskofer, Roshan Jumaludin, Roy Kregosky, Sally Vinden, Savannah Nimmon, Sophie Whittingham, Stephen Ford, Steven Swanson, Terryl Bertagnolli, Vic Gladdish.

With thanks from the Quadra Island Cycling Coalition Board Members: James Manders, Jack Mar, Sam Whittingham, Andreas Hagen, Sheldon Etheridge, Ron Armstrong, Rob McKerracher

Broadband Internet Sessions on Quadra and Cortes Islands

As you have already heard, better internet is proposed for your community! The SRD is planning for better connectivity in your area by connecting with residents of the Discovery Islands. We will be on Quadra Island, Thursday June 6th from 7-9pm at the Quadra Island Community Center and on Cortes Island on Wednesday June 19th from 4-6PM at Mansons Hall.

We will be hosting a Broadband Community Plan presentation and workshop which is open to the public and are looking forward to seeing many residents attend from your communities and surrounding areas. Community members will have the opportunity to learn about broadband and new infrastructure projects, share ideas on their community's digital future and get inspired thinking about the real-world possibilities. We look forward to hearing more about your community's vision on how better internet connectivity will shape the Discovery Islands and what type of new investments they feel this may create.

This event will be promoted through social media & print advertising (when available) and posters in prominent locations (attached). We would appreciate if you shared this information with community members and would be happy to send a personalized invitation to those who might be particularly interested, if you would be so kind to pass on their contact information. We are really hoping to see representation from business/ chambers of commerce there and those who may be interested in driving initiatives through better broadband.

We hope to see you June 6th on Quadra Island or June 19th on Cortes Island and ask that you confirm your attendance via email rsvp@srd.ca or by phone at 1-877-830-2990, ext: 6724.

This is an exciting project for the communities of the SRD and made possible through funding provided by Island Coastal Economic Trust.

World Oceans Day is June 8

Scientists believe 80% to 90% of plastics entering our oceans come from land; while some is litter along our ocean beaches most plastics flow down our streams, creeks, lakes and rivers to our oceans.

In 2016 the World Economic Forum warned “there will be more plastics than fish in our oceans by 2050 if we continue on the path we are on”; we now dump eight million tonnes of plastic into our oceans every year, killing and harming marine life.

Ideas to help as well as events filled with fun, education and action can be found on World Oceans Day <http://www.worldoceansday.ca/events/british-columbia>

Children's Centre Thanks

The Children's Centre would like to extend a most heartfelt THANK YOU for making our annual Garage Sale fundraiser we held on May 11th such a huge success! And also thank you to the community for all your kindly donated items and your deep pockets on Sale day, your donations help keep our wonderful Centre open and the inspiration and cornerstone to the island community that it is.
